Summer Fun Guide

At Schooled Magazine, we believe that if you're bored, you're boring! Don't waste your free time! While you're here at BYU or UVSC for the spring/summer terms, make the best of it! Here are some great ideas for you to try something on your own, meet some new people, go with some friends, or make it a date! There are plenty of different things in Utah Valley to keep you busy!

By Deborah Barlow-Taylor & Rachael Cutler

Picnic Or Sunbathe In Provo Parks

Enjoy the summer weather! Have a picnic, play some outdoor sports, or sunbathe at some beautiful local parks. Here's what each park has to offer.

Bicentennial Rotary Park (1400 S 1600 E) includes pavilions, picnic tables, playground equipment, restrooms, duck pond, large trees, and sand volleyball.

Bridal Veil Park (Provo Canyon) includes picnic areas, BBQ grills, trails, fishing, and a waterfall!

Canyon Glen Park (Provo Canyon) includes pavilions, picnic tables, BBQ grills, playground, restrooms, fishing, river trail, volleyball areas, and Great Western Trail access!

Fort Utah Park (200 N Geneva Rd) includes pavilions, picnic tables, restrooms, fort replica, rugby field, sand volleyball, skate court, softball field.

Kiwanis Park (820 N 1100 E) includes pavilions, picnic tables, playground equipment, restrooms, tennis court, baseball field, volleyball, and large turf open space.

Maeser Park (451 E 600 S) includes pavilions, picnic tables, water taps, BBQ grill, playground equipment, walking path, basketball, restrooms, power and lights.

Riverside Park (1260 W 600 N) includes pavilions, picnic tables, playground equipment, restrooms, fishing access, and the Provo River Trail.

Riverview Park (4620 N 300 W) includes pavilions, picnic tables, water taps, BBQ grills, playground equipment, restrooms, trail access, sand volleyball, lights, drinking fountain, stream, tennis courts.

The Ultimate HOT TUB!

Check out the Homestead Crater in Midway (about 20 minutes from Provo) and check out 96-degree hot springs. They are open to the public to sit and enjoy, snorkel, or scuba dive (www.homesteadresort.com/the\_crater/the\_crater.cfm).

Laser Tag

Go Laser Tagging on a two-floor laser tagging course with black lights, fog, and obstacles at Laser Assault, 264 N 100 W in Provo.

Hike the Y

It's a shame if you've been at BYU for more than a year and haven't hiked the Y! It's a short hike, but don't be fooled, it's a great workout and not to mention a beautiful view. If you've hiked the Y many times try changing things up a bit, hike at night with some friends or try hiking to the summit of Y mountain.

Get Great Deals on Your Summer Events

Utah Valley Convention and Visitors Bureau (www.utahvalley.org) offers free passports with coupons and ideas of great places to go in Utah Valley. You can pick up a free passport at the Visitors Bureau at 111 S. University Ave. in Provo.

CityDeals.com For 25 to 75 percent off gift certificates to restaurants, entertainment events, and local businesses, visit the CityDeals.com website and get some great discounts.

Disc Golf

Disc What? Disc Golf is a sport that has been around since the 1970s and is played much like traditional golf but instead of a ball and club, you have a Frisbee. The object is to complete each hole in the fewest number of throws. The "hole" can be a number of different things but typically it's a metal basket.

Bicentennial Rotary Park and Rock Canyon Park both have disc golf courses. This activity is great for a small group of roommates, or a large group of friends! You can find out more on how to play at www.discgolf.com.

Pool Parties and Ho

Are you like me, aching for something to do this summer but usually being left wanting more? Well I think I might have found some answers. On May 25th and every third Friday thereafter at 9 p.m., the party is at Seven Peaks with all your favorite hip-hop and top 40 tunes, a 50 foot screen showing live video of your friends at the party and your favorite music videos, and of course their hot tubs, wave pool, and water slides are open! Still not convinced? How about thousands of singles at every party, door prizes, and inflatable games? The best part is, girls get in for just $4 before 10 p.m., and guys get in for just $6 all night.

Seven Peaks is kickin' it off with local rapper Prince Early live and on stage for a short performance at their first pool party May 25th. Get your free VIP card at the first party for free stuff and discounts. Three weeks later on June 15th, famous rapper B-Money, who made it big on www.youtube.com with his music video "Provo Rap," will perform his bread and butter plus a brand new rhyme written especially for the event! Visit the pool party myspace site at www.myspace.com/sevenpeaks to see B-Money's music video and to hear demo music from Prince Early. Add Seven Peaks as a friend, and you will receive a free glow stick at each party this summer!

Seven Peaks is also rolling out the fun with season water park passes at only $39.95 for students! What better way is there to enjoy your summer than with water slides, a killer tan, and plenty of swimsuit clad singles? Also, if you're looking for a place to stay and want free water park passes,

The Ultimate Longboarders Buying Guide

By Devereaux Smith
Photos By Mark Hansen

In working at the most killer skate shop in the valley, one often sees tons of 'newbies' come in and want to get some steezie setup so as to thrash the local hills. They all seem to have the same questions and lack of information. So here is a collectivity of words to educate your membrane on long boarding, so if you make that great mistake and buy your setup from the mall or sporting goods store, you'll at least have a small inkling as to what to buy.

First off, you need to figure out what you plan to destroy and how much you can scrounge out of your couch and the wishing ponds at the mall. There are basically three styles of riding to consider when long boarding:

BOMBER, this is the kid that is constantly in search for lengthy vertical drops down the canyon. Your primary concern is stability and response at Mach speeds.

CARVER, this the kid that is more into the artistic expression of long boarding. They seek a variety of terrain to power slide, carve, and simple be steezie. One may say this is the root of skating. Very southern California beach like.

TRAVELER, this is the kid that is looking to have some fun long boarding, but primarily to get from the couch to class to flipping burgers at the Billy's Burger.

Now, you may be saying to yourself, "But, what if I want to do it all?" Don't stress your little noggin. In deciding what your dominant style is, you'll be able to pick a setup that is more dominant in that style and thus allowing for the most fun. All setups in essence can do everything-- some are just more dialed for certain styles of riding, like automobiles. You don't buy a single cab truck to road trip in, although it may do the job. No, you buy that truck to haul your fat girlfriend around in the back. Like wise with a long board. In the end though, Washingtons really determine what you can buy, from that entry level setup to that setup of speed, style, and love.

Next you need to understand the shaping of a deck. Well, a deck is the wood part that you stand on. There are several features that set decks apart in there styles of riding.

KICKTAIL, is where the back of the board rounds up, creating a leverage point. This is great for riding around town or doing tricks. With a kicktail you increase your ability to ollie and skate somewhat normally. It's great for ollieing up curbs, cracks, manholes, and small children that tend to clutter the pavement. A dual kicktail allows you twice as many options of tricks and you can now go fakie. WOW!

CONCAVE, is scoop in the middle of the board. The scoop creates a wall for you to grip as you are carving or doing kick tricks. In carving you can now grip the deck better, allowing you to get lower to the ground, or power slide out farther than if your deck was completely flat.

DECK WIDTH is also something to consider. If you are part of Big Foot's family then you should look for a wider deck. A wider deck may not be as darty as you want, but it will offer more stability and be less wobbly in all styles of riding. Think, is it easier to walk across a rope or a wood platform? It's similar in riding. Now, it doesn't mean don't get a skinny board. It just means evaluate your foot size and what kind of experience you want to achieve from long boarding. Besides, that skinny deck would look so good with your new punk rock skinny jeans.

PINTAIL is where the deck comes to a point or close to a point in the back. This design is for optimal speed in bombing hills. It reduces wind resistance in adding to the aerodynamics of the board. Simply, you're going to go faster than any other deck.

TRUCKS is also something you should understand. The way the kingpin is angled into the base of the truck really determines how it will perform. The more angled it is the more responsive it will be in turning. The geometry of downhill (bombing) trucks is also going to be a lot different than the other trucks so as to decrease wobbles. Each company is different, so go to your local core skate shop and check out the trucks.

HANGER. The width of the hanger also goes into play as to how stable the truck is. If you have a short hanger and a wide board you're going to get wobbles, so keep your hanger width proportional to your deck width.

RISERS. To help protect your deck get some risers. They will help in preventing stress cracks in your deck. You bet your decks stressed, especially after carting your tubby butt around. Risers also allow you to get deeper carves and less vibrations into the legs. There are two types; vibra and hard plastic and they both come in 1/2" flats or 1/2" angled.

BEARINGS are going to be your point of speed. We don't have enough space in the article to get into a lot of detail. Look for ceramic and titanium bearings. Oh, and flip an extra burger or two if you want the fastest, they are about the same price as a deck, but ever so worth it!

WHEELS, now here is where you'll see the biggest difference in performance besides bearings. When you're getting bearings there are two numbers; size (mm) and durameter (a). Durameter is the hardness of the wheel and its grippiness to the pavement. The larger the size of the wheels and the higher the durameter number the faster they are going to go and less grippy they will be. The smaller the wheel and lower the durameter the slower they are going to go and more grippy they will be. The Carver prefers a softer wheel, for it allows them better traction and the ability to stick deeper carves and tricks. You want a harder wheel if you're a Traveler or Bomber.

PROTECTIVE GEAR. Chicks dig scars, but not lifeless vegetables. If you don't want to be a vegetable on the couch peeing through a tube and only getting action from your ventilator then wise up and get a helmet and some protective gear. When you're fitting yourself with a helmet you want it to be fitted. It should move with your head and not over move when you do. There are a lot of great helmet companies out there so try several on and find the one that is the most comfortable and go with it. Also, always ride with a bro. You never know when your going to have a sexy make-out sesh with Ms. Concrete and will need that wing-man to peel you off her.

It's time to kill the communication, but before you go back to playing tiddly-winks, remember go to support your local core skate shop, not these mall or sporting good stores that are only in it for the Washingtons. Your local shop will be able to answer your questions and get you on a setup suited to your style. Oh, and don't think you're the freakin' Capernicaus of long boarding cause you read this article 100 times. Keep it mellow and have a dope time thrashing the streets on your long board!!!
